I. Thou shalt treat fellow students and instructors with dignity and respect.
II. Thou shalt attend all lectures and discussion sections whenever possible.
III. Thou shalt not start a two-week long homework assignment two days before it is due, then complain that there is too much homework.
IV. Thou shalt not cheat on quizzes or exams.
V. Thou shalt ask questions and seek help from the instructor and TA before exams, not just after.
VI. Thou shalt carefully read the Stat 301 FAQ page, and abide by its contents.
VII. Thou shalt distinguish between the course material and the course instructors, especially on evaluations.
VIII. Thou shalt not blow off this course, then panic at the end of the semester, begging for “extra credit.”
IX. Thou shalt tell me of any special circumstances before the course ends, when accommodations can still be made, not after.
X. Thou shalt generally strive to exhibit a level of brains and maturity higher than that of a Raisinet.
